City of Hemet Launches San Jacinto Valley Cultural Assets Map

HEMET, CA – The City of Hemet is thrilled to share the launch of the San Jacinto Valley Cultural Assets Map with the community, now live on the City of Hemet website.

The map was shaped through a collaborative arts and culture community meeting where residents, artists, organizations, and local leaders came together to identify the people, places, and practices that make the San Jacinto Valley unique. Through guided group discussions, participants helped build a living inventory by naming meaningful cultural assets that already exist throughout the region. To view the Cultural Assets Map, please visit, <https://www.hemetca.gov/1358/San-Jacinto-Valley-Cultural-Assets-Map>.

Featured entries include the name of the asset, information on the asset, address, and site URL (if applicable.)

What's Included in the Cultural Assets Map:

The map captures a wide range of cultural resources identified by the community, including:

- Public Art – Murals, sculptures, and creative installations
- Cultural Practices – Traditions, customs, and creative expressions
- Organizations – Arts, cultural, and community-based organizations
- Events – Festivals, performances, and recurring cultural gatherings
- Places – Cultural spaces, landmarks, and creative hubs
- Trails – Pathways and routes with cultural, historical, or artistic significance

The City of Hemet encourages the community to submit cultural asset entries for consideration. Entries can be submitted on the San Jacinto Valley Cultural Assets Map landing page. Together with the help of the community, we look forward to the continued development of the Cultural Assets Map as a valley-wide resource fostering community engagement and pride in the greater San Jacinto Valley region.
